This strong drama has received a three week's run at the Grand opera house, New York City, and during the present season has scored decided hits in Chicago, Cincinnati, Boston, Philadelphia and the principal cities of the United States and Canada. The company is compose of well-known dramatic artists specially engaged for their respective parts and the scenery and mechanical effects are new and especially designed for this production.

Rentfrow's Jolly Pathfinders last night closed a week's engagement here. The play last night was a very funny farce comedy "A Pair of Owls." A good house greeted the performance and arplause was given fairly and often. The company have grown very popular here and but for the inciement weather which prevailed all week, crowded houses would have greeted them every night.

company will appear on the boards of the Crawford Grand opera house, and all those who feel that they have vitality enough to successfully resist the ravages of two hours and a half of side-splitting laughter should attend. The company is made up of thirty-five of the young people of Wichita, headed by J. Maurice Holden and Walter Elmore of the Irishman's Lova company, which pleased the people so well during their recent engagement. Those who have witnessed the rehersals say that the performance is bound to be one of the greatest theatrical successes of the season, as the boys who are in it are not only well posted in their lines, but are naturally excellent actors. The people of Wichita should turn out to this show, first because it is worth seeing at double the money, and second because they should act on the general principle of eucouraging talent and home telent at that. The company will give a parade tomorrow at diaily invited to attend.

STRANGE, BUT TRUE.

A Case in Which Fact Beats the Wildest Brenms of Fiction. Although Oliver Curtis Perry has seen but little more than a quarter of a century of life, and although he is not of partic ularly robust meld and weighs only about 130 pounds, yet he is a crimina the latest of whose exploits would have caused the cheeks of the James and Younger brothers to blanch with dismay if those veteran and widely celebrated appropriators of the property of others were now in the active pursuit of mile a minute, hook a rope ladder to the cornice of the car, slide down the frail, dangling support, break in the glass of the door, thrust a pistol through the opening, shoot the express messenger and then enter, secure what valuables could and escape. Such a story would be considered so improbable that read that class of literature, would consider it as beneath contempt. But if the dime novel author, presum ing upon the gullibility of his clientele, should have the temerity to go still farther and let his hero, disguised as a clerical looking chap, alight at the first station at which the train stopped, defy the assembled crowd with a pair of pis tols, rush to a freight train, uncomple the engine, mount it, and pulling the throttle wide open ride away at breakneck speed, maneuvering when pursued man-of-war, pouring broadside after broadside into the engine which carried those who were bent upon his capture; his story would be considered as being as fantastic as some of Baron Munchausen's remarkable adventures.

But all this Oliver Curtis Perry did. and more too. The adventure ended disastrously for him, for the steam having run low in his engine he was obliged to take to the swamp, where he was capnow languishes in the Lyons (N. Y.) juil, shackled and with a prospect of a in the face.
